CHAPTER ONE

Introduction

INTRODUCTION OF THE ISSUE

The definition of war is a country being taken over against its will.

We are not being taken over yet by tanks and red uniforms, like the Caltex advertisement on T.V. would suggest (Caltex is part of the Seven Sisters' oil cartel). However, we are being taken over by detente through finance.

This issue deals with and explains in brief:

- (1) what is happening;
- (2) who is making it happen; and
- (3) why they are making it happen to their long-term gain and our nation's loss.

Also, after having read this issue you will understand that we are a Nation of over three million people who are being intimidated by about 300 controllers at the top. OWL's aim is to reverse the role of intimidation and would hope that three million New Zealand people who are being affected by high interest rates will come in behind us.

The facts you are about to read may astound you. It is not our policy to prove what we say, despite the substantial evidence which this has been condensed from. It is up to those who are now being confronted with their own iniquity to attempt to prove us wrong.

The volumes of evidence we have has come from many locations around New Zealand, Australia and the U.S.A. the same apparent method the group circulating the gemstones has adopted, so that if any reprisals are taken on any OWL members or their families, as some threats would indicate, then this information will pour forth off photo-copiers all over New Zealand and Australia.

Although this issue is heavy-going, we would ask that you read, and if necessary re-read it, particularly the takeover history.

"If my people, which are called by my name, shall humble themselves, and pray, and seek my face, and turn from their wicked ways; then will I hear from heaven, and will forgive their sin, and will heal their land."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Dear Sir/Madam,

There seems to be so much confusion over what is actually happening in Fiji. One news report says that Colonel Rabuka is believing in Christian principles and another report says that there are atrocities.

Can you give us your impression of what is happening in Fiji?

Yours, etc.

Letters To The Editor

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Sir,

In reply to your letter, we do not want to be too critical of individuals. However, let us look at it from the common logic point of view. There are two reasons why a sane man (and we believe Rabuka is a sane man) would overthrow his own Government, and they are:

- (1) that his country was threatened from without; and
- (2) that his country was threatened from within.

We believe that his country was threatened economically and morally from within. We also believe that he identified this and realised that the democratic government had been hijacked (similar to New Zealand). The definition of a democracy is a nation ruling itself through its elected representatives. In Fiji, as it is in New Zealand, they did not have a democracy — it was an elected dictatorship. So, if this is the case, then why not have a true dictatorship? There is little difference, particularly if the real dictatorship is a better quality than the elected dictatorship.

Here we must go into another definition — that of war. The definition of war is a country being taken over against its will. Fiji, like New Zealand, was a country at war, except in Fiji the Military recognised this.

Fiji was, as New Zealand is now, being taken over and sold out with finance. The country is being removed from the ownership of the people who live in it.

Colonel Rabuka, in our opinion, identified this and tried to take it over to get back to a Westminster democratic society having a president and getting back to elections as soon as he could.

The Secretary-General of the British Commonwealth, non-Christian-believing Sir Shridath Ramphal (Sony) — refer issue 2, page 7 — made sure one way or another that Colonel Rabuka and Fiji were removed from the British Commonwealth.

This should be compared with Zimbabwe when it became independent and changed its name from Rhodesia and remained part of the British Commonwealth. It is a country run by a Marxist Government which murdered any opposition, and yet Sony Ramphal was willing to allow it to stay in the British Commonwealth. So here we have the Crown and Sony Ramphal allowing a Marxist State, Zimbabwe, which is run on much worse principles and with worse atrocities than has ever occurred in Fiji and is ever likely to, welcomed into the British Commonwealth. On the other hand, we have Fiji being kicked out because they have gone against the financial interests of the monopolistic capitalists.

OWL INFORMATION

Dear Sir,

Can you please inform us or attempt to straighten out some of the confusion over the new Government Corporations. It appears by your figures that our country is increasingly getting more in debt overall while we are supposed to be selling off our State-owned enterprises in an attempt to reduce our external debt. There are so many statements about having to pay for our dams, etc. twice. Will you please attempt to clarify this?

Yours, etc.

Sir,

We have been trying to portray in previous issues of OWL the method in which the International Financiers or Monopolistic Enterprise, owned by very few powerhungry people, are attempting to take over the nations, companies, production, land, etc. of the world. This particular issue dwells on this in more depth, but to sum up your question, a Government debt owned and funded by the taxpayers of a Nation cannot be bankrupted, although it may run at a loss. It cannot be taken away from the people of the Nation.

However, as a private corporation separate to the Government it can be put into debt bondage and through a depression (which is looming at present) it could be bankrupted and the assets taken away by those who loaned the money to the corporation using corporation assets as security. This is exactly what the intended plan is. As was said, you cannot bankrupt a Government debt but you can bankrupt a corporation and take over its assets.

You will read a little bit further into the back of this issue where the aim of the International Bankers is to take over the land and mineral assets of a Nation, and this has to be caused or done by a depression. Depression is the only method.

A lot of people are under the impression that, even if overseas corporations do own it, it is in our country and they cannot take it away. This is correct, but it is like owning your own home and, through one reason or another, losing it and then having to rent it back off the new landlord. You do not have the say or the ability to maintain it as you would like and you do not have control over that home. You may still live in it but it is not yours. Our country is being stolen and we will still live in it, but it will not belong to New Zealanders. What then do you think the landlords of New Zealand are going to charge us to live in our own country?

The other interesting aspect is that all these Government departments which have now been corporatised or privatised, used to run on the New Zealand taxpayers' funds. Now that they are supposed to be becoming self-sufficient in their own resources (user-pays), have your taxes dropped 50% because, say, approximately 50% of the Government departments have become private corporations? NO!

CHAPTER THREE

Poetry Page
'Five-Per Cent'

TODAY 25% BUT NEVERTHELESS RELEVANT

FIVE-PER CENT

*Because I have ten thousand pounds I sit upon my stem,
And leave my living tranquilly for other folks to earn.
For in some procreative way that isn't very clear,
Ten thousand pounds will breed, they say, five hundred every year.
So as I have a healthy hate of economic strife,
I mean to stand aloof from it the balance of my life.
And yet with sympathy I see the grimy son of toil,
And heartily congratulate the tiller of the soil.
I like the miner in the mine, the sailor on the sea,
Because up to five hundred pounds they sail and mine for me.
For me their toil is taxed unto the annual extent,*

*According to the holy shibboleth of Five-per-Cent.
So get ten thousand pounds, my friend, in any way you can.
And leave your future welfare to the noble Working Man.
He'll buy you suits of Harris tweed, an Alredale and a car;
Your golf clubs and your morning Times, your whiskey and cigar.
He'll cosily install you in a cottage by a stream,
With every modern comfort, and a garden that's a dream.
Or if your tastes be urban, he'll provide you with a flat,
Secluded from the clamour of the proletariat.
With pictures, music, easy chairs, a table of good cheer,
A chap can manage nicely on five hundred pounds a year.
And though around you painful signs of industry you view,
Why should you work when you can make your money work for you?*

*So I'll get down upon my knees and bless the Working Man.
Who offers me a life of ease through all my mortal span;
Whose loins are lean to make me fat, who slaves to keep me free,
Who dies before his prime to get me round the century;
Whose wife and children toil in turn until their strength is spent,
That I may live in idleness upon my five-per-cent.
And if at times they curse me, why should I feel any blame?
For in my place I know that they would do the very same.
Aye, though they hoist a flag that's red on Sunday afternoon,
Just offer them ten thousand pounds and see them change their tune.
So I'll enjoy my dividends and live my life with zest,
And bless the mighty men who first—invented Interest.*

CHAPTER FOUR

Federal Reserve

Federal Reserve Like Game of Cards

By Jack Metcalf

Fundamentally unsound, a debt-money system makes it mathematically impossible for us to pay all the interest on the money we must use.

To illustrate: Four cowboys rode into town one evening for a card game. They asked all around town, but were unable to find a deck of cards. Finally, at the Federal Reserve Saloon, the manager produced a deck of cards. He stated clearly that it was the only deck of cards in the whole territory: they were very valuable.

"We just want to play cards," one cowboy said. "Will you lend us the cards just for the evening?"

"Now you're talkin'," the manager replied. "We can do business. I'll lend each of you 13 cards, if you will put up sufficient collateral."

They agreed. One pledged his horse, another his saddle, another his guns and the last one pledged a small bag of gold dust. Each one of them borrowed 13 cards and agreed to pay back 14 cards.

When the evening ended, they brought the cards back. Three had 14 cards and redeemed their collateral. But, since only 52 cards were lent out, the last cowboy had only 10 cards. He could not repay his debt; he lost his collateral.

These four cowboys wouldn't have to play many evenings before they figured out there was something wrong with the system. It is mathematically impossible for them to all redeem their collateral. The system was ingeniously designed to acquire their assets by creating only the money to repay the loan; not the interest.

It's easy to understand the monetary mischief in this simple setting. It is difficult to see it clearly when there are millions of people and hundreds of billions of dollars rattling around through the system.

But the principle remains the same: In any debt-money system, all money comes into existence as an evidence of debt—interest-bearing debt. Since the money to pay the interest is not created at the time of the loan, the interest is mathematically impossible to pay and some must lose their collateral. The system was designed that way.

The end of the evening is represented in society by a recession or depression. Those who are unlucky, improvident or have misjudged business conditions lose their collateral. Worse still, those who collect the collateral can manipulate the system to cause the recession or depression. The ultimate corruption is the corruption of a nation's money system for private profit.

"They went that a way!"
